Programma

Against the backdrop of developments during the Maoist era of socialisation and central planning (1949-1978), detailed consideration will be given in the lectures and accompanying discussion classes to the nature, rationale and impact of post-1978 economic reform. By the end of the course, students will have gained a clear understanding of the sources not only of China's remarkable economic growth during the last quarter of a century, but also of the many problems and challenges which it faces in the first decade of the twenty-first century. The knowledge they gain from this course will also give them insights into wider problems of future economic and social development, as these relate to China and other parts of the Asia-Pacific, and the implications these will have for the rest of the world.
