WHERE

Department of Culture, Politics and Society of the University of Turin, Italy

WHY

In response to the growing interest in the Middle East, the third edition of the Summer School will focus on the political economy of the region and its transformation. The challenging and highly intensive programme will provide the students with the tools to understand and explain the profound changes that have occurred and are occurring across the region. The Summer School favors a political science approach offering interpretations that are useful to better comprehend the main critical issues at the regional level and, at the same time, to pay attention to the on-going dynamics in some of the countries where the Arab uprisings were generated

The working language is English and participation is open to students and professionals willing to critically explore the complex facets of the political dynamics of the Middle Eastern region.

The detailed program is available online

Students who do not live in the Torino area may apply for one of the 10 FREETORINO scholarships covering lodging expenses for the duration of the School

The School will accept applications from March 7th to May 24th 2016
